Modern industrial

A no-fuss approach to kitchen design, industrial pairs well with matte white, black, greys and oaks. Interior designer Darren Palmer says you could also consider brickwork as a textural splashback but “just make sure you have a return above your cook top to save tomato sauces and other oily splashes getting into your lovely, but porous brickwork”.

What a gem

Jewel tones are the hot new trend with furniture and décor in rich muted colours such as burgundy, emerald green and plum, with luxurious materials such as plush velvet. According to Emma Blomfield from online homewares retailer TheHome.com.au, one simple way to adopt this trend is to add cushions to your sofa – navy is a great classic that can be added to most colour schemes. Fresh flowers can also be used to introduce the jewel toned theme.
